

Message From Rabbi Goldstein

In the beginning of January, Sally & I attended a conference of the National Association of Retired Reform Rabbis (NAORR). It's the second consecutive year we attended and we love it. The vibe is relaxed, there's little sense of rabbinic competition, and it reinforces for me how blessed I am to continue my work as a congregational rabbi at Sha'arey Ha-Yam. NAORR, is most importantly for me, an opportunity to re-connect with my colleagues who were ordained in 1975, and to reflect on three ways that made our class unique.

First, when we entered Hebrew Union College, we were the largest class in HUC's history. And of the more than 70 entering rabbinical school students, more than half of us were there for an ulterior motive: Gaining a seminary deferment from serving in the Vietnam War. I was one of them. I honestly don't feel embarrassed to share that reality, nor do I feel particularly proud of it. The simple fact was that most of us were opposed to the war. And for students like me, who already planned to have a future in Jewish leadership, applying to rabbinical school was not a difficult decision. Many of the rabbis you know, who are my age, therefore, attended rabbinical school for an ulterior motive. It has not affected our credibility as rabbis.

Second, my HUC class of 1975 was unique because we represented the American counter-culture. The seminary administration tried to prepare by telling us there would be "no revolutions" in rabbinical school. But there was a revolution. From the way we dressed to the length of our hair, from mocking synagogue decorum to promoting "Do It Yourself" Judaism, from advocating for women's rights to gay rights, from participating in environmental causes to protesting for the rights of Soviet Jews. In so many ways, the emergence of counter-cultural rabbis, I would argue, had a wonderfully positive impact on American Judaism.

Finally, my HUC class of 1975 was the first class that was required to spend our initial year of studies in Jerusalem. It was, as I've often shared, an incredible time to be in our Jewish homeland. We returned after that year to rabbinical school in New York, Cincinnati, or Los Angeles imbued with advanced Hebrew skills, with Zionist passion, with healthy inner conflicts over the question of "aliyah," and with a recognition that to be in post-1967 Israel was to experience a pivotal time in Jewish history.

Now, I see my classmates nearly 50 years later. Most of us have emerged from our rabbinates knowing that we have established significant legacies. We, the HUC class of 1975, were blessed to play important roles in the Jewish story. When I reflect on all this, I am left to say a prayer of gratitude that I've been privileged to be part of a group that impacted the Jewish people in remarkably unique ways.

President’s Message

2018 is shaping up to be a busy year for our Congregation....the winter is half over, the weather is tolerable, and we already have several upcoming events and more on the way.

Once again this year the women of Sha’arey Ha-Yam will be hosting a Miriam’s Seder jointly with the women of Beth Am Shalom in Lakewood on March 22. It’s an opportunity to celebrate the prophetess Miriam and the importance of women in the Exodus from Egypt. It’s also an opportunity to reach out into the community at large and connect with our non-Jewish sisters and build bridges to greater understanding and fellowship (sisterhood).

Following closely behind the Miriam’s Seder is our own 2nd Night (afternoon) Seder led by Rabbi Goldstein. The Seder will take place on Saturday March 31 from 1 PM to 5 PM at the Captain’s Inn in Forked River.

The Fundraising Committee is also making plans for a Dine-A-Round at a local restaurant for some time in May and an Art Auction to take place in August. There are some additional activities “in the works”, so watch for updates over the course of the next few weeks and months.

Finally, I still need each of you to take part in the day-to-day activities of the Congregation. In order for us to continue to grow and be successful, everyone must participate...your Congregational Family needs you and I need you! Due to my current workload, I cannot do it all (membership calls, newsletter on a monthly basis, yahrzeit reminder letters, community outreach/advertising/marketing)
